

Thy Will Be Done?

Is your will written?

Will your intentions be realized?

Live On: Build your Jewish Legacy.

Help sustain the organizations you care about long into the future by leaving your bequest as a perpetual endowment.

And then tell them.

What organizations have had an impact on your life and community?

How do you want to be remembered?

How can you make a lasting difference and support causes you care about?

LIVE ON

BUILD YOUR JEWISH LEGACY

Why should you consider leaving a legacy?

- Perpetuate the vitality and purpose of organizations you love
- Continue your support of the values and causes you care about into the future
- Create a lasting tribute to honor family, friends and loved ones
- Leave the world a better place and make a difference: tikkun olam

"It is very important to me to continue the legacy of giving to the institutions and programs that I have worked so hard for in my lifetime. By giving bequests to each organization, I know that my values will continue on after I am gone."

- Robyn Loup

Twenty-eight metro-area Jewish organizations are on their way towards raising millions of dollars for endowment to sustain their programs. In the coming months, they will be encouraging all of us to leave a Jewish legacy for future generations in our wills and estate plans.

If you have remembered an organization in your will or listed them as a beneficiary of your retirement plan, let them know. Help them reach their goals.

If you have not yet created your legacy, Live On can help. Visit liveonlegacy.org or call 303.398.7405 for information about the Live On organizations.

“Jewish knowledge and history are important to me. I am working with Colorado Agency for Jewish Education and the Jewish Community Foundation so that my legacy will help provide education to future generations. I have let them know about my bequest to encourage others to do the same.”

—Gene Kay
